

SYSTEM AND METHOD FOR FACILITATING SERVICES

Abstract of the Disclosure

This application discloses systems and methods of facilitating communication between a service professional and a client. In one embodiment, a professional submits profile data to a service facilitator who makes the profile data available to prospective clients, and the professional agrees to use a service enhancing system to provide service to any client obtained. The professional may agree to provide payment for use of the service enhancing system, may agree not to charge the client for the use of such system, may agree to use an enhanced version of the service enhancing system in exchange for enhanced availability of the profile data, may agree to specific standards of service in exchange for making the profile data available, and/or may agree to provide periodic assurance of adherence to the specific standards, or may provide a combination of those agreements.
